

Quick Links

Being employed is an important part of life and it can mean that you can be more independent. It equips you with important life skills like making choices and decisions, but it also means that you can become a part of something. Being employed can include paid employment, volunteering opportunities and other ways you can help in your community.

Here are some links to programs that can assist you in developing the skills or providing the support you need for employment.

Transition to Work program

Transition to Work is a new service to support young people aged 15-21 on their journey to employment. The service will provide intensive, pre-employment support to improve the work-readiness of young people and help them into work (including apprenticeships and traineeships) or education.

<https://www.employment.gov.au/transition-work>

Skills for Education and Employment program

Skills for Education and Employment (SEE) is a program run by the government to help develop speaking, reading, writing or basic maths skills to improve the chances of getting and keeping a job.

<https://www.humanservices.gov.au/customer/services/centrelink/skills-education-and-employment>

Work Ready program

WorkReady is a South Australian government initiative that brings together funding for training, employment and skills activities.

WorkReady is about targeting training and employment opportunities to the needs of people, strategic industries and regions.

<http://www.skills.sa.gov.au/About-WorkReady>

Parents Next program

ParentsNext Project providers work with parents to help them to identify their education and employment goals, develop a pathway to achieve their goals and link them to activities and services in the local community.

<https://www.employment.gov.au/parentsnext>

Registering with an Employment Agency / Government Initiative

Finding work or going through interviews on your own can seem daunting. Did you know you can register with an employment agency or government employment initiative.

An employment agency or government employment initiative provider works with, you, the job seeker to help find work. This means that they are working on behalf of the job seeker, and will work closely with candidates to help them find employment.

Many employment agencies and government employment initiatives also offer training to get you ready for the work force.

jobactive

Jobactive is the Australian Government's way of getting Australians into work. It connects job seekers with employers. Your jobactive provider will meet with you to help find work and develop a Job Plan. They'll also connect you to a range of other government initiatives, including relocation assistance, wage subsidies, training and apprenticeships. Jobactive services are generally available to those receiving income support payments such as Newstart Allowance, Youth Allowance (other), or Parenting Payment, and to those who have mutual obligation requirements. The Australian Government Department of Human Services will assess your circumstances and eligibility for jobactive before referring you to a jobactive provider.

<https://jobactive.gov.au/>

